WARRANT ISSUED FOR ARREST OF THE LINDBERGH SUSPECT ON A CHARGE OF MURDER; LOOK FOR EXTRADITION MOVE

Life of Bruno Richard Hauptmann Released From Police Custody—Alleged Recipient of Ransom Money Unceasingly Questioned by Police Officials—Resists Efforts to Pin the Crime of the Century on Him.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 21—A warrant for the arrest of Bruno Richard Hauptmann on a charge of murder was issued last night by Commander Thomas B. Mulrooney, executive clerk to Governor Harry Moore, signed by the Governor, and the State of New Jersey probably will move for Hauptmann's extradition today.

NEW YORK CITY, Sept. 21—Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, wife of the German alien, alleged recipient of the Lindbergh ransom money, was released from police custody at headquarters today. It was not immediately learned where she went upon release, or whether she had been definitely cleared in the case. However, it was believed she would show up later at her Bronx home.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(INS)—Surrounded by a phalanx of police officials and questioned unceasingly, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, 35-year-old unemployed carpenter, today sullenly resisted efforts of the authorities to pin on him the crime of the century—the kidnaping and murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Hauptmann's iron nerve still held this morning as evidence against him mounted steadily, tending to show he not only was the man who received the $50,000 ransom but that he may have been the actual kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby. He came up with a seemingly weak alibi when the police confronted him with the highly incriminating fact that the floor and walls of his garage yielded $13,750 of the ransom money, and after the Lindbergh intermediary, Dr. John F. (Jafie) Condon, positively identified him as the "John" to whom he handed the $50,000 sheaf of marked bills.

Reluctantly, the flycatching prisoner admitted he had in his possession $40,000 in bills which he did not deny were part of the ransom money. First he said he had saved the money through the years. And then he changed his story and said: "Isadore Fish gave the money to me."

The police wanted to know who Isadore Fish was. The distraught and evasive Hauptmann was vague about Fish but insisted however that Fish owed him the money, and after leaving a package with him containing $40,000, he left the country for Germany and has not returned. Hauptmann said he hid the money in his garage and used some of it to speculate on the stock market.

Around his neighborhood in the Bronx, New York, not far from where the ransom money was paid, Hauptmann had given the impression he was dabbling in stocks in Wall Street. This morning a formal charge of extortion was placed against the prisoner. It was obvious this allegation was only a stop-gap and that a more serious charge would be made against him later.

Hauptmann was held throughout the night at the District Attorney's office in the Bronx and also at a police station in that part of the city. He has been under steady and unrelenting questioning since his arrest at 9 o'clock on Tuesday. The best police brains in America—Federal and State, were taking part in the interrogation of the all-important prisoner who has been the object of a world-wide hunt for the past two and a half years.

COMMUNICATION

Bristol, Pa., Sept. 19, 1934.
Editor, Courier:

The distressing accident of last week in which a young man just on the threshold of life was suddenly and without warning killed and horribly mutilated, brings up the question of safety.

In and about Bristol are a number of power contrivances, good, bad and indifferent, some home made or improvised from parts found in junk yards, automobile grave yards, etc.

When an automobile motor is geared to a shaft or saw arbor on which there is a heavy fly wheel without a governor or some contrivance to control the speed, we have a condition which is comparable to the lighted match and powder keg. No one without a knowledge of machine design and the law of physics has any conception of the energy stored up in a pulley or fly wheel revolving at high speed. Uncontrolled, this energy is as destructive as T. N. T. Some of the greatest disasters in industrial plants have been caused by the explosion of fly wheels and large grindstones.

In the light of these facts, isn't it in order that we give serious consideration to the danger involved in the unlicensed use of this class of machinery, to the end that the operator and the public in general may be protected?

In these depression times many people are seeking to earn a living along unfamiliar lines, and they deserve commendation, but too often their ignorance of the danger leads to tragic consequences. Two lives have been lost and several persons maimed for life in the last few months in accidents similar to the one last week. Industrial plants are subjected to rigid inspection even though operatives are expert in the use of machinery and while we have factory inspectors who are conscientious in the discharge of duty, they cannot reach these itinerant unless special attention is directed to them.

Would it not be well to require any operator of a high speed machine to get a police permit before putting it in service, the permit to be given only after the factory inspector has approved the device?

GEORGE ARDREY.

Mrs. Maurice Roche, Locust street, was taken to St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, on Thursday for observation.

What part the Philadelphia Bureau's activities played in the arrest of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, the alien held in New York, is not known. It is believed substantial however because of Harvey's continued presence in New York during the past few days.

SPORTS

ST. ANN'S GRIDDERS ARE NEARING TIP-TOP FORM

After several weeks of intensive drilling under the guidance of Coach "Socks" Seneca, the St. Ann's A. A. gridders, Bucks County champions in 1933, appear to be nearing tip-top shape for the opening kick-off Sunday on St. Ann's field. The Hunting Pros will be the Purple and Gold's opponent in the fracas.

Several new players were added to the St. Ann's squad during the last week and during the drills this week the team seemed raring to go. A glance over the line-up will see that Coach Seneca has quite a few changes.

"Tommy" Barrett, former star of the Bristol High School team, broke into the scrimmage on Sunday and showed enough prowess to about earn a starting position at halfback in the opening engagement. Barrett's running mate will be "Turp" Tershon.

There will be a new signal barker in the Hunting fray. "Pete" Borneice, who started at half-back last season, has changed his position to be a field general. Borneice, from all appearances, will most likely start the season at this post. Al Cataline, burly fullback, who needs no introduction will be at his old post when the opening whistle toots.

After the final scrimmage on Sunday, the followers of the local squad wondered what Coach Seneca would do after his brother, "Moonie," injured his ankle. Seneca, one of the mainstays of the line who was banked upon to be in the starting lineup will be greatly missed. However, Coach Seneca solved the problem by placing another brother, Dick, in the injured player's position.

"Pete" Court who has developed into one of the best wingmen in this locality, will start at one of the end posts. Pete has joined the St. Ann's squad for the first time, previously playing with other teams of this vicinity. He will prove a great aid to the team and is waiting for Referee Joe Alta to blow the signal starting them off.

The remainder of the line is the same as last season's final game. Ortol, Nicols, Angelo, Kornstedt and Esposito make up the forward line.

Ambler A. A. previously was booked for the opening skirmish but this was called off and Hunting Pros was substituted. The St. Ann's management is endeavoring to get the Ambler team for next week's attraction.

BENSALEM ELEVEN HAS ARRANGED ITS SCHEDULE

BENSALEM TWP. HIGH SCHOOL, CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Sept. 20—A squad of 35 boys has been working out daily since the opening of school under the supervision of Coaches George Reimer and Frank Myers, the latter a new addition to the Bensalem staff, and hailing from Edinboro State Teachers College. The letter-men returning from last season's varsity are: Capt. Bill Amick, John Edelmann, and Al Ridge, at ends; Elwood Ridge and Fran Thomas, tackles; Jack Thomas, Joe Fletcher, and Tom Adams, guards; and Bill Lange and Joe Wilk in the backfield. Among the promising new material are: Jim Swallow and Alfred Rigby at center; Kim Faust at guard; Bill Henderson at tackle; Jim McMahon and Bill Leonard at end; and Ed Efling, Leonard Malone, Harold Robinson, Bob Lange, Bruce MacKenzie, Jack Huehner, and Ralph Kratz in the backfield. A practice scrimmage with Bristol high will be held on Friday, and that will afford a good chance to get a line on all the material.

The 1934 football schedule is as follows: Sept. 28, Newtown, away; Oct. 5, Upper Merion, away; Oct. 12, Langhorne, home; Oct. 19, Pemberton (N. J.), home; Oct. 26, Fallsington, away; Nov. 2 (open); Nov. 9, Lower Merion, away; Nov. 16, Hatboro, away; Nov. 23, Morrisville, home; Nov. 29, (A. M.) Alumni, home.

At a recent meeting of the Lower Bucks County Athletic League held at Langhorne, the following officers were elected for the ensuing school year: President, Charles Beck, Langhorne; vice-president, Glen Horst, Southampton; secretary-treasurer, George Reimer, Bensalem. New Hope High was awarded the first place baseball cup for the 1934 season, and Bensalem the runner-up cup.

The basketball schedule for the 1934-35 season was drawn up, and the following schools joined the league: Bensalem, Bristol, Fallsington, Langhorne, Morrisville, and Southampton. Since Fallsington and Langhorne do not have home floors, they will play all their games on foreign floors.

The following schools were represented at the meeting: Bristol, Morrisville, Southampton, Langhorne, Fallsington, Bensalem, New Hope, Newtown, Yardley and Buckingham.

SZABO AND DUSEK IN WRESTLING BOUT DRAW

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 20—Sander Szabo and Rudy Dusek wrestled, slugged, kicked and tugged at each other for 90 minutes on the Arena mat last night. But their efforts—aside from arousing some 2,000 fans into a frenzy—were to little avail. They wound up as they started—all even. The berserk Dusek won the first fall in 53:37. Szabo won the second in 19:41, and the 90-minute time limit expired before either could gain a deciding finish in their third fling at each other.

Such gentle playmates were Mr. Szabo and Mr. Dusek that they thought little or nothing of twisting, hitting or tearing each other's anatomy. Feet, they showed, were made to kick as well as walk. The ropes that bound the ring they made excellent use of—trying to strangle each other. Sentiment among the fans naturally drifted to the handsome Szabo. Dusek, one of a family of mat villains, incurred the dislike of the onlookers even before the bout started. Referee Tony Kall found Rudy's body covered with an excess of grease and ordered him to the dressing room to remove the slippery surface before allowing the skirmish to start.

Szabo, the crowd's accepted hero, made himself such by refusing to resort to unorthodox tactics unless Dusek did so first. Once spurred to action, however, Szabo showed no reluctance to use his fists.

As a result, it was a case of the fans booing lustily as Dusek entwined Szabo's arm between two ropes and threatened to break several bones. A moment later, however, when Szabo ensnared the Dusek head in the self-same spot, the crowd roared for a public hanging.

Through it all, it was Kall, the referee, who had a most distressing time. He continually had to separate the contestants from illegal holds by his own sheer strength.

It was well past midnight when the bout sounded. Kall raised both men's arms in token of a draw. They shook hands. As a parting gesture, Dusek slapped Szabo on the jaw. Sander roared by kicking savagely at Rudy's midsection. A policeman stepped into the ring to halt hostilities and, reminding of law and order, the grapplers repaired to their dressing rooms.

In the semi-final bout, another villain of the mat, Vanka Zelezniak, was given his due by the ever-popular Scotty McDougall. Scotty pinned Vanka's shoulders to the mat in 26:32 and won himself the windup spot on next week's card. He will wrestle Everett Marshall.

Charlie Allen was the only other winner last night. He defeated Al Giecwicz, the former "Red Devil," in 23:50. Two others—Henry Graber and Frank Bronowicz—grappled 30 minutes to a draw.

Promoter John Ipp's first mat show of the new season drew a near-capacity house, and the three hours and a half of action furnished the faithful with plenty of cause for vocal acclaim.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 19—Gossips grow more and more skeptical of Evelyn Venable's denials. They predict that the youthful Paramount star will marry Hal Mohr, Fox cameraman, soon after she reaches her majority. Which may mean very soon, indeed, for Evelyn celebrates her twenty-first birthday on October 18.

All queries get the same answer from Evelyn. "When I marry, it will be done with the approval of my father and without any attempt to conceal the wedding plans," she says.

Hollywood rumor has repeatedly quoted Professor Emerson Venable as opposed to Evelyn's marriage to Mohr. But the star keeps right on having dates with him.

Handsome Nils Asther, who has shunned Hollywood social life almost as much as his countrywoman, Greta Garbo, is removing himself even further from the cinema sphere. The Swedish actor has bought a 1000-acre ranch in Acapulco, Mexico, and plans to live there whenever he is not working in pictures. Nils' ranch has timber, sugar cane and tropical fruits. The actor is having his furniture and books shipped over from Europe and has even sent his Great Dane, Erik, to live on the ranch.

The coming blessed event in the family of Song Writer Ralph Rainger is being hailed at Paramount as one more link in a series of amusing coincidences.

Each time Bing Crosby makes a picture, somebody in the troupe becomes a father.

It started with Bing's first film, "The Big Broadcast," when Stuart Erwin passed around the cigars. Right around "College Humor" time, Crosby, Richard Arlen and Director Wesley Ruggles all became fathers.

During "Too Much Harmony," Skeets Gallagher paced the hospital halls for the second time. It was left to an electrician working with the company to uphold the legend for "We're Not Dressing," but Bing clinched it firmly with the Crosby twins soon after the finish of "She Loves Me Not." And now Rainger's baby will carry on for "Here Is My Heart."

What well known young actress has bet two of her boy-friends a fancy sum they can't stay on the wagon for 30 days and now is making it plenty tough by dragging them around to all the late spots?

DID YOU KNOW—
That Glenda Farrell was born during a cyclone in Enid, Okla.?

Here is some sort of a record. Olive Jones, 21-year-old singer from Columbus, O., flew into Hollywood with two home-town newspapermen to chronicle her first days in the movies. Olive got a Warner contract for her work in the stage musical, "Champagne Sec." She has been a music student since the age of four, but started singing only a few years ago.

Do I hear a chorus of feminine groans? The hobble skirt is to make its reappearance. Adrian, M. G. M. stylist, has designed one and you can see it for yourself in "Evelyn Prentice." Myrna Loy wears the new 1934 version.

THE FIRST DISTANT RUMBLES OF THE IMPENDING GRID SEASON WILL BE HEARD THIS WEEK-END AS SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA OPENS ITS CAMPAIGN--

THE 145-LB. WARBURTON WILL BE U.S.C.'S KEY MAN THIS YEAR--THE GREATEST BALL CARRIER IN THE FAR WEST--

THE CANNY Trojan master mind has built his team around the elusive and mercury-footed Warburton, as he lacks the "power-house" backs for plunging and line-bucking.

The fleet cotton top won several games almost single-handed for Jones last season, but then Troy's head man was able to pick the spots for his speedy, rabbit back. This year Warburton will have no such powerful preceding quarterbacks as Griffiths and Shaver to play part of the game for him.

THE football season won't start in earnest until next month, but on the west coast the gridders start in early with what might be called "warm-up" contests, so the pickin' warriors are already beginning to bust into the sport headlines.

This Saturday will see the 1934 grid debut of the famed Trojans of the University of Southern California, long the most feared football machine in the Far West. The 1934 edition of the Trojans, headed by chat magnificent mite, Irvine "Cotton" Warburton, starts off the season with a double-header, taking on two "set-ups" in a single afternoon. Occidental and Whittier are the eleven due to be flattened by Howard Jones' steam-roller, and these contests will serve mainly as work-outs in which the Trojan mentor can experiment with his material.

U. S. C. was hard hit by graduation, losing such great veterans as Rosy Rosenberg, Homer Griffiths, Larry Stevens and others. The present edition of the Trojans will not be the powerful offensive machine that Jones has relied upon in the past few seasons, but will depend on speed and deception rather than man-power.

WARRANT ISSUED FOR ARREST OF THE LINDBERGH SUSPECT ON A CHARGE OF MURDER; LOOK FOR EXTRADITION MOVE

Wife of Bruno Richard Hauptmann Released From Police Custody—Alleged Recipient of Ransom Money Unceasingly Questioned by Police Officials—Resists Efforts to Pin the Crime of the Century On Him.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 21—A warrant for the arrest of Bruno Richard Hauptmann on a charge of murder was issued at midnight last night by Commander Thomas B. Mulrooney, executive clerk to Governor Harry Moore, signed by the Governor, and the State of New Jersey probably will move for Hauptmann's extradition today.

NEW YORK CITY, Sept. 21—Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, wife of the German alien, alleged recipient of the Lindbergh ransom money, was released from police custody at headquarters today. It was not immediately learned where she went upon release, or whether she had been definitely cleared in the case. However, it was believed she would show up later at her Bronx home.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(INS)—Surrounded by a phalanx of police officials and questioned unceasingly, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, 35-year-old unemployed carpenter, today sullenly resisted efforts of the authorities to pin on him the crime of the century—the kidnaping and murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Hauptmann's iron nerve still held this morning as evidence against him mounted steadily, tending to show he not only was the man who received the $50,000 ransom but that he may have been the actual kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby.

He came up with a seemingly weak alibi when the police confronted him with the highly incriminating fact that the floor and walls of his garage yielded $13,750 of the ransom money, and after the Lindbergh intermediary, Dr. John F. (Jasie) Condon, positively identified him as the "John" to whom he handed the $50,000 sheaf of marked bills.

Reluctantly, the flynnish prisoner admitted he had in his possession $40,000 in bills which he did not deny were part of the ransom money. First he said he had saved the money through the years. And then he changed his story and said: "Isadore Fish gave the money to me."

The police wanted to know who Fish was. The distraught and evasive Hauptmann was vague about Fish but insisted however that Fish owed him the money, and after leaving a package with him containing $40,000, he left the country for Germany and has not returned. Hauptmann said he hid the money in his garage and used some of it to speculate on the stock market.

Around his neighborhood in the Bronx, New York, not far from where the ransom money was paid, Hauptmann had given the impression he was dabbling in stocks in Wall Street. This morning a formal charge of extortion was placed against the prisoner. It was obvious this allegation was only a stop-gap and that a more serious charge would be made against him later.

Hauptmann was held throughout the night at the District Attorney's office in the Bronx and also at a police station in that part of the city. He has been under steady and unrelenting questioning since his arrest at 9 o'clock on Tuesday. The best police brains in America—Federal and State, were taking part in the interrogation of the all-important prisoner who has been the object of a world-wide hunt for the past two and a half years.

TELLS HOW LINDBERGH CASE HAS BEEN SOLVED

Statement Made by Police Commissioner John R. O'Ryan

CO-ORDINATED EFFORT

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—Police Commissioner John R. O'Ryan issued the following statement in connection with the Lindbergh case:

The taking into custody of Bruno Richard Hauptmann today marks unrelenting and closely co-ordinating efforts on the part of the New York Police Department, the Jersey troopers and the Department of Justice to bring to a solution the Lindbergh kidnaping and with the facts at hand we are satisfied that the first and most important stage of the police work has been accomplished.

The story as related by the detectives who have been engaged on the case for more than two and one-half years might best be told in chronological fashion.

Within two days after the payment of the ransom money in St. Raymond's Cemetery a $20 gold certificate was discovered in the East River Savings Bank, at Amsterdam ave. and 96th street.

However, despite untiring efforts on the part of the investigators, we were unable to discover a single tangible lead as to the identity of the passer of the ransom money, and for more than two years not one bill of the $20 denomination appeared again.

Meanwhile, some $500 in $5 and $10 bills were passed to small storekeepers at various locations throughout the city.

The small denominations of these bills and their common use made them practically useless to us, yet entailed an individual investigation for each specific bill. Despite the disheartening fact of the seeming failure, our men refused to be disheartened. Three weeks ago $10 and $20 gold certificates appeared in the Yorkshire and Fordham sections of the city.

Storekeepers, garage owners and all merchants, particularly gas stations, were asked to co-operate and requested to identify, as near as possible, the owner with each $10 and $20 gold certificate passed on to them.

It was suggested, whenever possible, to mark either a street address or automobile license number on the bills of the one passing the bill.

In connection with this we traced a $20 gold certificate to a shoe store in Fordham and from that merchant we secured a description of the man who passed it.

Subsequently, one of the ransom bills bearing an automobile license

COMMUNICATION

Bristol, Pa., Sept. 19, 1934.
Editor, Courier:

The distressing accident of last week in which a young man just on the threshold of life was suddenly and without warning killed and horribly mutilated, brings up the question of safety.

In and about Bristol are a number of power contrivances, good, bad and indifferent, some home made or improvised from parts found in junk yards, automobile grave yards, etc.

When an automobile motor is geared to a shaft or saw arbor on which there is a heavy fly wheel without a governor or some contrivance to control the speed, we have a condition which is comparable to the lighted match and powder keg. No one without a knowledge of machine design and the law of physics has any conception of the energy stored up in a pulley or fly wheel revolving at high speed. Uncontrolled, this energy is as destructive as T. N. T. Some of the greatest disasters in industrial plants have been caused by the explosion of fly wheels and large grindstones.

In the light of these facts, isn't it in order that we give serious consideration to the danger involved in the unlicensed use of this class of machinery, to the end that the operator and the public in general may be protected?

In these depression times many people are seeking to earn a living along unfamiliar lines, and they deserve commendation, but too often their ignorance of the danger leads to tragic consequences. Two lives have been lost and several persons maimed for life in the last few months in accidents similar to the one last week. Industrial plants are subjected to rigid inspection even though operatives are expert in the use of machinery and, while we have factory inspectors who are conscientious in the discharge of duty, they cannot reach these itinerant unless special attention is directed to them.

Would it not be well to require any operator of a high speed machine to get a police permit before putting it in service, the permit to be given only after the factory inspector has approved the device?

George Harvey, head of the local office of the Bureau assigned a veteran operative to "live" with all Philadelphia angles of the Lindbergh case. The operative's report, together with all ramifications which developed from it, consisted of more than 2,000 pages of notes. What part the Philadelphia Bureau's activities played in the arrest of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, the alien held in New York, is not known. It is believed substantial however because of Harvey's continued presence in New York during the past few days.

FACTS WANTED

The National Safety council is planning a study to determine what relation drunken driving bears to the increasingly serious highway safety problem.

If it can obtain reliable figures on this subject it will be rendering an important public service. Drowsy and wets constantly are in dispute on the matter, the former claiming that the return of liquor has caused a great increase in the number of automobile accidents. The wets, while admitting that drinking has been a factor in the increased accident rate, deny that it has been the leading one.

W. H. Cameron, managing director of the safety council, refuses to concede that drunken driving is the major cause, but he expresses the belief that it is more important than statistics show. He thinks there are many cases where police prosecute a motorist for reckless driving or speeding instead of for driving while drunk because it is harder to get a conviction on the latter charge. But he wants accurate figures before expressing a definite opinion on the part that liquor is playing as a factor in road accidents.

There can be little doubt that it is a cause, although how important it is in relation to other causes remains undetermined. It was a cause in the days of prohibition, and the return of liquor could not have been expected to wipe it out.

It must be dealt with along with other causes. It properly is recognized in the laws of most states as a serious offense, and fitting punishment is provided. It should be the determination of authorities to enforce to the limit the law against it. A drunken man behind the wheel of an automobile deserves no leniency at the hands of the law, and police should see that his offense is not covered up by a less serious charge that carries a lighter penalty.

Tells How Lindbergh Case Has Been Solved

number was discovered in the Corn Exchange Bank at Park avenue and 125th street. From there the bill was traced to a gas station in the vicinity of the bank.

The operator of the gas station described the customer who passed the $20 gold certificate in an almost identical fashion as the one described by the Fordham shoe store proprietor.

Securing the name and address of the owner of the automobile bearing the license number appearing on the bill the investigators kept the premises under surveillance. Because of the importance of the case and the danger in the least possible slip-up, the men acted with caution and at 9 a. m. Tuesday, Bruno Richard Hauptmann was seen to leave his residence in the automobile bearing the license which appeared on the bill and started toward Yorkville, with the detectives following.

When his car reached Tremont and Park avenues the detectives halted Hauptmann's car, directed him to get out and, searching him, found another $20 gold certificate identified as part of the Lindbergh ransom.

He was immediately taken back to his house and while questioned there admitted passing the $10 and $20 gold certificates found by the police. He denied, however, all knowledge of the Lindbergh ransom money.

Meanwhile a search of the place was instituted and a pair of shoes located and identified by the Fordham shoe store proprietor was found. Yesterday, in continuation of the search of the house, Detectives John Murphy, Frank Dunn and James Petrosini, of the New York Police Department, Sergeant Wallace, of the New Jersey State Police, and Special Agent Turo, of the Department of Justice, found, after a diligent search of the entire premises, $13,750 hidden under the floor of the garage and in the sash of the door.

From the many conflicting stories Hauptmann has told detectives, we learned that he is 35 years old, born in Sarony, Germany, and after serving in the German Army, stowed away on the steamship Washington, arriving in the United States at New York in 1923. He stated he had odd jobs about the city until 1926, when he married and made his home in the Bronx.

Strangely enough, he explains that shortly after the ransom money was paid, he quit working and devoted his time trading in the stock market. He explains the presence of the

"You've been so sweet and kind, darling," she added, kissing him tenderly. "I hope I can make you really and truly happy."

Howard held her close, kept her face turned away from him as he answered. He had thought it all out a hundred times, what he would say to her. With words he would mold the bare fact of his cowardice into an act of reason, color it with nobility and fineness. But suddenly the words he had chosen deserted him.

"Oh, Caro, Caro," he whispered brokenly, "help me, help me."

And then he told her that they could not be married. For a while Caroline lay quiet in his arms, uttering not a sound. Howard began pouring out words of entreaty against the numbers of her mind. He felt her tremble, shake. She tried to draw away. He held her closer still. "Don't, don't," he pleaded. "I can't lose you, Caro, I can't. Don't turn on me, don't blame me. I've been through hell. Dad's a devil. He'll persecute us forever if we defy him."

It seemed to Caroline that she had been plunged into a nightmare. All that was clear to her was that Howard was proposing to let her down for no better reason than his fear of dishonor. He was free—no, he was not free. Dollars shackled him. He was steeped in the worship of Mammon. She could feel a wall of gold rising up between them—was it on a scale, with her in the balance?

She did not laugh. She did not cry. She simply felt sickened. When she tore herself free of his arms, without violence, but with infinite relief to be beyond the touch of his hands, he sensed the true measure of her reaction. Stark despair strode into his soul.

Caroline sent him away. With words as soft as she could summon, because she felt no anger toward him, she told him that he must go. She pitied him, seeing his weakness as she had never seen it before. But it was not the pity that is akin to love. She was glad when the door closed behind him. She did not want to look at him, or think of him. It was as though he took with him the ashes of a fallen idol.

Dry-eyed and calm she went upstairs and told her father what had happened. Her voice was level, cool.

"It wasn't because he said that he couldn't marry me," she said, "but all at once I knew that you and Mother, and Malcolm, had been right. What love I had left for him died in that moment, when I saw the real Howard."

"What love you had left?" her father repeated.

She nodded. "I know—now—that I've been falling out of love with him for a long time. He kept me from knowing it with his kindness." Philip sighed. "I'm glad," he said simply. And then, "I suppose you won't go back to the factory," he added.

Caroline did not answer for a moment. "Why shouldn't I?" she asked finally. "I earn my wages." "I'd rather you didn't," her father told her.

"Well, I'll look for something else."

But first, there were other things she must do. Heading the list was the necessity of telling Mrs. Stevenson she could not keep her. That astonishing person declared she would stay without pay, at least until Mr. Rutledge was up and around again. Quite without knowing it Caroline had won the lady's heart.

Then came a hard task—to write to Fern that she must let the nurse whom Howard was paying go immediately. Fern promptly wrote back, greatly to Caroline's relief, that she had meant to do this anyhow, as Arthur had got a job at last and they could get along very well without the woman.

money as a result of careful savings, and the gold certificates as foresight, with word of the supposed inflation shortly after President Roosevelt took office.

However, in tracing back to the bank which he stated issued him the gold certificates we got a blank denial of each phase of his story.

Somewhat significant is an admission that he had been employed in the neighborhood of the Lindbergh's Hopewell home as a carpenter.

In addition the detectives have established beyond question that he had access to a lumber yard where lumber bearing a peculiar mark similar to that found on the lumber in the ladder, which was found at the scene of the kidnapping, is to be had.

Despite the fact that Hauptmann denied that he had a criminal record I have just been advised that tonight he admits he was on parole and escaped as a stowaway from Germany to prevent his return to prison there.

SPURT AVAILS FIRST DEFEAT OF ENDEAVOUR

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 21—A gambler of the sea, all his chips on the rolling board, Harold S. (Mike) Vanderbilt diced desperately with the winds yesterday to score one of the most amazing triumphs in all the history of the fabled America's Cup.

He shot his snowy-hulled Rainbow out of the sea haze and the smoky mark of the huge trailing fleet to overcome a lead of almost seven minutes in 15 miles and add three minutes and 26 seconds more for his first victory margin of the series over T. O. M. Sopwith's blue bolt challenger from Great Britain, Endeavour.

Not in the memory of the oldest salts peering incredulously from the fringe of the astounding drama was there a recollection of anything like this ever taking place before in the history of the international racing classic that goes all the way back to 1851.

And last night, instead of an all but unconquerable lead of three straight victories, which she had by the mutual consent of all except Vanderbilt at the half-way mark yesterday afternoon, the Englishman's lead was only 2 to 1, with anything likely to happen now in the thrilling battle of the great sailing sloops.

Starting out in typical Rainbow weather—a breeze of only 6.8 statute miles an hour at the start nine miles southeast of Brenton Light Ship—for the 15-mile run to leeward and the beat back the same distance against the wind—the big cup defender gave a miserable display to the outward mark.

The air was fluffy, puffing out of the northeast, exactly the same sort of conditions under which Vanderbilt, in the first race last Saturday, piled up a lead of almost a mile before the 5½-hour time limit caught him two miles short of the finish line and made it "no contest."

Instead of taking the lead, or even giving the swift-running Endeavour a fight of it, Rainbow slipped steadily astern in the run southwest by south toward a point off the southerly end of Block Island. They went over the line together in bright sunshine, and a sparkling blue sea, both under mainsails and jibs, but once the maneuvering for the start was over, out came the parachute spinnakers, the "Mae West" on Rainbow, the "Annie Oakley" on the Blue Bolt, and away went Endeavour.

That was the first astounding development of the day, for this sort of thing was supposedly Rainbow's last hope. Beaten Monday in a whanging breeze over the windward-leeward route, trimmed again Tuesday in a fine sailing breeze over the 36-mile triangular course, American hopes rested on light airs. Here they had them, and yet Endeavour steadily opened more and more water until she rounded the 15-mile buoy at 1:27:17 (P. M.), exactly two hours, 27 minutes and 17 seconds after the start at 10:49 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time), with Rainbow six minutes and 39 seconds, about a mile of rolling sea, behind.

Once around the mark, Vanderbilt looked at the deal and made his choice. He went off to port looking for wind and soon found it—wind in gusts. And then with the big Genoa jib he had set after rounding the mark pulling perfectly, the Rainbow started up. The wind had hauled around so that the trip home, instead of being a beat against the wind, was really a close reach with the breeze, freshened to about eight knots, coming in southeast by south.

Almost before Sopwith realized what was happening, Rainbow came sliding upon his stern, and the wind, bounding off the defender's sheets, was hitting back against Endeavour's sails, offsetting the drive from the other side. Sopwith had to go over on the port tack to get away from him, and he lost valuable distance, not only there but coming about again after he was free.

Rainbow, with Sherman Hoyt, of New York, one of the defender's after-guard, replacing Vanderbilt at the wheel, sailed steadily through and three miles past the turn was less than a hundred yards to weather of the challenger.

Even then, it took another special dispensation from the fates to bring Rainbow home in front. Sopwith wasn't getting the draw with a big reaching jib that Vanderbilt was enjoying with the Genoa, a big sail that billows out front. While Vanderbilt was able to sail close to the wind, barely able to set a straight course for the finish line without tacking, the Englishman's jib was drawn nowhere near so fine.

Sopwith had to tack again, and in coming around twice he again lost distance but he made certain of fetching the mark. All the way down through the stretch, with Rainbow now over half a mile in front, the only question worrying the Americans was whether Vanderbilt in the end would have to tack to get over the finish line between the Wilhelmina and the final buoy.

He hit it smack on the nose, at 3:13:34 P. M., with Endeavour crossing at 3:19:00, 5 minutes, 26 seconds later. Both times were slow and came nowhere near the records. Rainbow's elapsed time was 4:35:34, Endeavour's 4:39:00.

So taking all things into consideration, Endeavour still was held a 2 to 1 favorite to win the series, though with the chance of light airs continuing Rainbow's chances admittedly are improved.

There will be no race tomorrow, as Sopwith asked for a postponement as soon as yesterday's race was over. It is believed that he wishes to work out the problems his big reaching jib developed yesterday.
